

Additional Information

Im Minna Rankine, and Im proud to be part of the next generation stepping up for Geraldton. At 26, Ive already led major community projects, co-built a social enterprise employing local people, and worked with government, business, and community groups to deliver outcomes across WA. My work has taken me from producing festivals and workshops to managing venue builds, supporting artists, and helping communities reimagine public spaces. Through it all, Geraldton has been my anchor.

What I've learnt is simple: our community thrives when we collaborate, listen, and turn good ideas into action. Geraldton has always been resourceful and creative, and I want to see that same spirit reflected in local decision making. On council, I will bring care, clarity, and a practical approach, with a focus on solutions that strengthen our community today while preparing for the future.

I know council alone does not have all the answers, but it can create the conditions for people, businesses, and ideas to flourish. I believe in decisions that make it easier for locals to contribute, that support small businesses and creative enterprises, and that invest in spaces where people feel connected, safe, and proud.

I believe I can contribute most effectively to the Geraldton community by nominating as a council member and bringing a fresh perspective grounded in real experience. Im ready to listen, to work constructively with others, and to play my part in shaping the next chapter of Geraldtons story. Whether elected or not, I will continue working for a collaborative and creative Geraldton.
